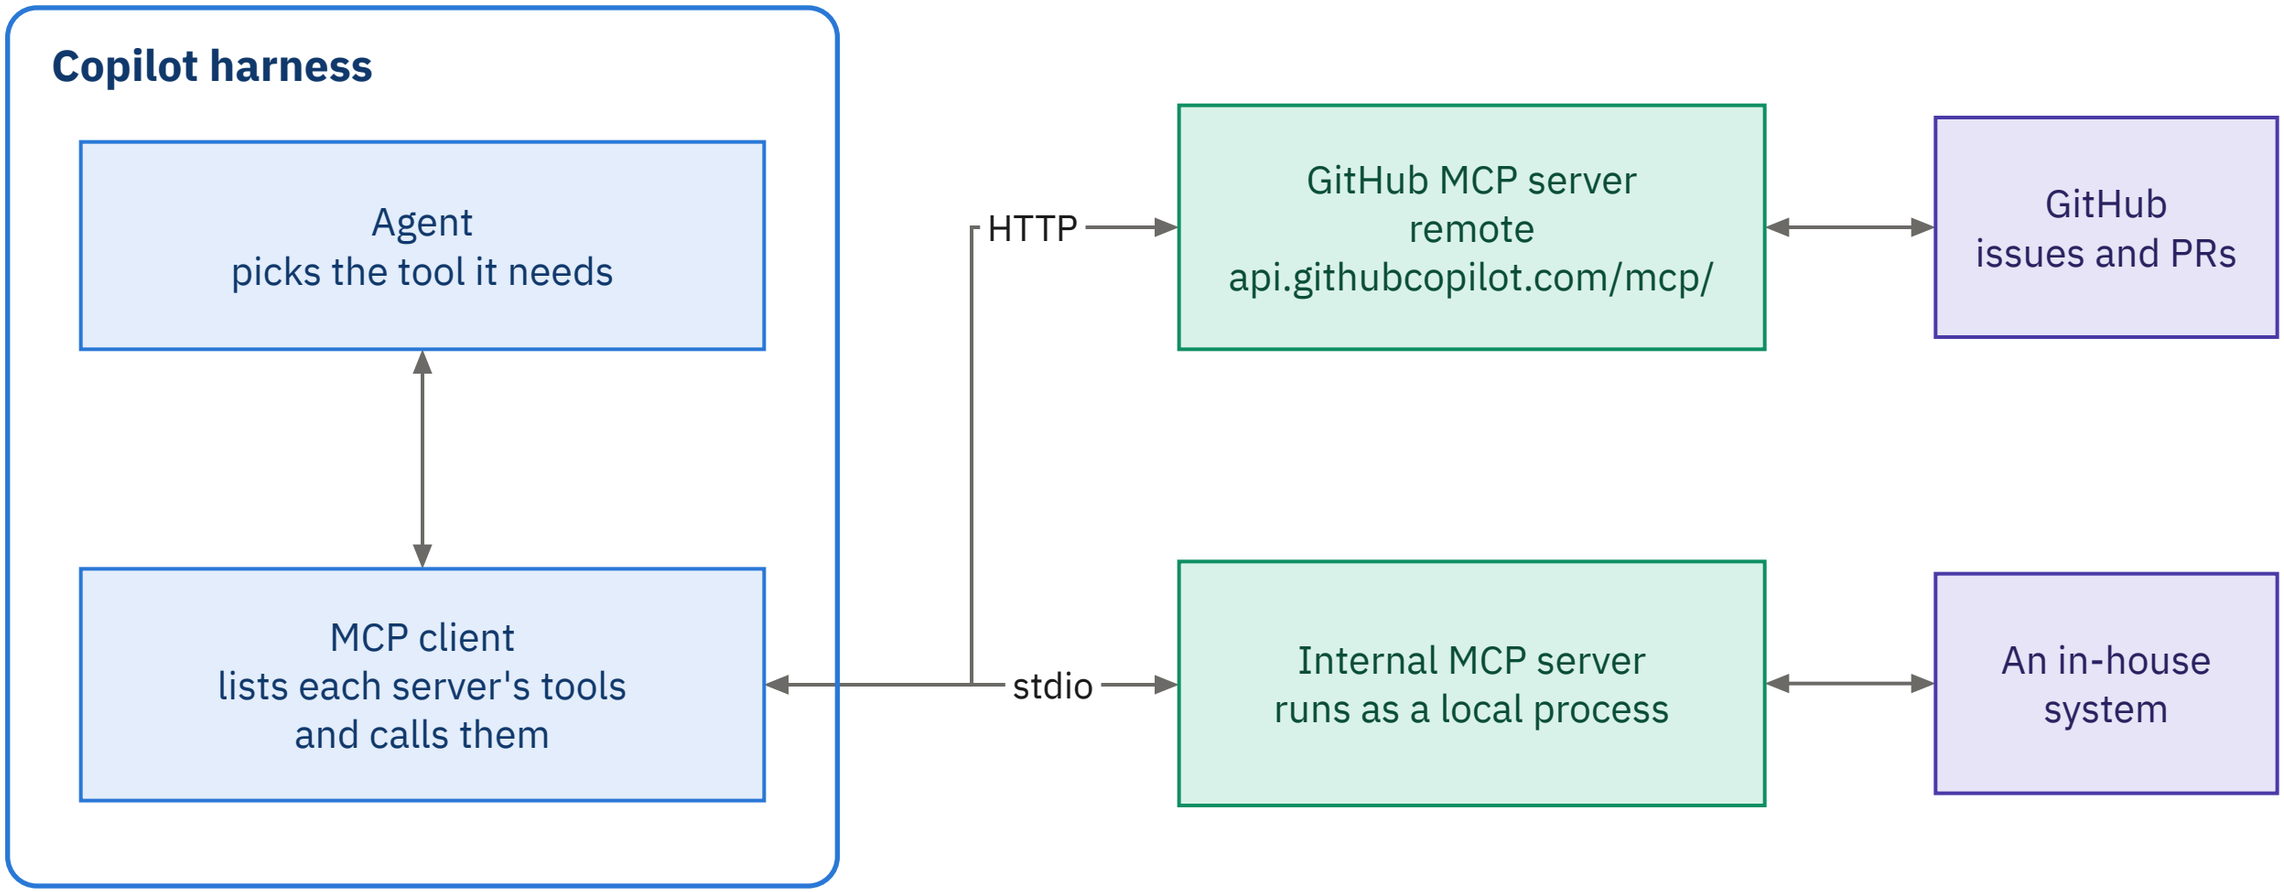
MCP: adding tools from outside the harness

An MCP server publishes tools; the harness's MCP client lists them and calls them for the agent.



The harness learns which servers exist from .mcp.json, and their tools appear beside the built-in ones.